Title: Flower Thing Collection

Description:

If I were a thing, I would be...a flower!

The challenge of starting any artistic work leads me to wander amidst the accelerated rain of thoughts.

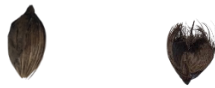

And in the mental exhaustion, I feel the care for the continuous process of the feminine maturation.

A feminine already without strength, annulled, inferiorized under structural influences that transcend ancestry.

Feeling this need for self-care leads me to want to experience being a flower in all its potency.

Ovary, ovules, seeds, and their explosion of life force.

Processes emerge through contact and observation in an attempt to be a seed and from this seed a flower.

Under processes of observing myself, feeling myself, imagining myself, reacting, re-editing myself, assembling, disassembling and distorting myself.

About the process of blooming and feeling the care on my skin. To feel the flow of life, the explosion of the life force.
